SUBJECT : DD/I Requirements for Communications

1. This is to confirm the discussion of DD/I communications requirements among Messrs. [REDACTED] and Tidwell on 18 September 1958.

2. There follows a description of our understanding of the problem of DD/I requirements for communications within the next few years. Although it is recognized that some of these requirements cannot be met in full until we are in the new building, we feel that it is essential that the Agency move as fast as possible to fulfill as large a percentage of these requirements as possible.

a. Washington Dissemination Net. This net is needed to disseminate current intelligence to main consumers and to other members of the intelligence community. A large proportion of the traffic on this net will be special intelligence.

b. Washington Area Coordination Net. It will be necessary for DD/I components to be in electrical communication with other members of the intelligence community, in order to coordinate intelligence views and handle other operational matters. It will be necessary for these communications to include special intelligence matters from time to time.
